

lemon snack

What is it: as soon as the smell fills the air, the low spirits will pass and the fresh, joyful mood not only stimulates our minds but also our bodies to be active? But what is it that, as we fight for its essential oils and squeezable sour juices, our hands, clothes and surroundings are also likely to become the target of splashing droplets and uninvited but swiftly gliding seeds? Yes, lemons. How can we avoid this unwelcome consequence?

Use dried lemon slices!

The product is produced by using MPM Research Ltd's gentle, low-temperature vacuum drying technology. The lemon rings are just as brightly yellow and vivid as the original and when soaked in water have the same tangy fresh taste. It's no exaggeration to say that this product is one of the few that combines health, pleasure and simplicity. Easy to dose, pack and transport.

And when you take a lemon slice out of the bag, you can throw it into your tea or lemonade and in a few moments you can experience everything you love about lemons.

What is the wonder of lemons?

Perhaps no one can think of a lemon without recalling its rich, tart, fresh flavour. Sour is one of the basic flavours, responsible for helping our bodies to discover nutritious meals, including potential sources of vitamins.

Lemons are extremely rich in vitamin C. They are a primary skin rejuvenator and regenerator. Their bioflavone content is a blood purifier and they are a powerful bactericide when diluted. The good news is that they retain all these benefits in their dried form.

What can we use the lemon snack for?

- 1 For organic acidification
 - to replace preserved lemon juice in HORECA units to enhance health consciousness
 - in everyday situations where practicality and cleanliness are important
- 2 For direct consumption
 - Soaking in water, dropping into drinks requiring lemon.
- 3 For baking
 - Soaked in water and then chopped to make cakes.
- 4 For confectioneries
 - Also excellent in jellies and aspics.
- 5 For flavouring ice creams, shakes, smoothies.
